Tuesday 27 October

The Great Room, Grosvenor House
Park Lane, London

These awards stand out above all other industry awards because they are judged to exacting standards by the CIOB. They are for people and they recognise and celebrate individual management achievement. To be a finalist is recognition of outstanding work done and special management ability. To win a medal is a major career achievement. To be named Construction Manager of the Year is to join the elite group of previous distinguished winners.

For companies and clients too, it's recognition that they employ the best in the industry and demand only the highest standards of construction management.

Join the finalists, their companies, the clients and all the members of the professional construction team to celebrate the only Awards that really make a difference.

And of course there's the superb dinner and top entertainment that makes CMYA perfect for entertaining clients or rewarding staff in the company of industry leaders.

Categories

12 Award Categories, covering management of small scale projects to the very largest retail and commercial developments. The Gold Medal Winner of one of these categories will be named Construction Manager of the Year.
